Winter seems to have vacated.

Speaker Cannon's 73d birthday finds him still as garrulous as a child.

The "angel child" was about to be arrested for shipping a $233 millinery bill. What a Thaw!

We move that Joe Battell of Middlebury go over to Paris, find James Hazen Hyde and chuck him in jail forthwith, automobile and all.

Two real torpedo boats will be placed on Lake Champlain during the coming Champlain celebration. This is one of the few indications that the government really knows there is a Lake Champlain. Another indication is an occasional appropriation to repair the Burlington breakwater.

If the Northfield license commissioners have succeeded in satisfying merely a majority of the people of Northfield in the distribution of liquor licenses, they may feel content and go about the remainder of their work with fresh courage. The first reports seem to indicate that the commissioners have chosen wisely.

Since nearly one-sixth of the total number of fires in Vermont last year were due to defective chimneys and flues, the efforts of the Barre city council in times past to compel builders of houses and owners of houses already built to have their chimneys and flues safe are proven to be wise. If the property owners were also hard-headed, they would see the advantage of doing the construction right.

If President Taft should appoint Governor Hughes of New York to the United States bench, the New Yorker wouldn't be permanently shelved, as the American people are bound sooner or later to yank him off and run him for the presidency of the United States. Putting him on the bench is only putting off the day of reckoning when the people will have their say. At the same time, we do not wish to accuse President Taft of an improper motive; and regarding the choice, there couldn't be a better one for the good of the bench. Judge Hughes would do as well as Governor Hughes has done and President Hughes will do.

A PROPER TAX EXEMPTION.

In view of the fact that several cities and towns are bidding to secure the E. C. Fisher company's tannery, which was burned out recently at Bethel, the voters of that village have done wisely in voting to exempt the plant from taxation for a period of ten years as an inducement for the company to rebuild. This power of exempting property from taxation is likely to be abused and is, we believe, often abused at the solicitation and maneuvering of mediant concerns. But the situation is different at Bethel; the citizens have to choose between being deprived of the temporary taxes from a large plant or being deprived of a flourishing concern which has been for years a part of the industrial life blood of the community, inasmuch as the Fisher company is not tied down to Bethel and can at this time be readily transferred. Those who have followed the progress of this hustling town will hope that the exemption voted yesterday will be instrumental in holding the tannery business in Bethel.

MANGLING THE SIGNIFICANCE OF "HERO."

"Heroes" are being manufactured in such large packages that we should like to enter a protest against the Vergennes Enterprise making one out of a poor fellow who got caught in a cave-in at a West Pawlet slate quarry and who was killed. Says the contemporary:

"Here is a little incident that should be recorded. When the body of George Kormos was dug out from under the cave-in at the West Pawlet slate quarry his shovel was still in his hand. Not all the heroes die on the field of battle. The men who work under ground in coal mines and quarries are just as brave as those who face death at the cannon's mouth. Kormos was an uncrowned hero."

By the same token a street worker who doesn't get out of the way of an automobile because he can't, the farmer who gets gored by a bull because he isn't spy enough to vault a fence, the man who deliberately walks onto a railroad track in the course of his business and unsuccessfully bucks a locomotive—one and all are heroes in the contention of the Vergennes contemporary. If the plain facts should be known, it would probably be found that Kormos would have dropped his shovel and run like a Comanche if he had had a warning the bank was to cave in. Not having had the warning, he was caught by the slide and with his shovel still in his hand. That's the way they found him. Therefore, while not desirous of taking from the poor fellow any credit that may really have been his due, we are inclined to think that the word "hero" is being cheapened and twisted out of all semblance to its real meaning.
